

transmission0

transmission0 (transmission-zero) fuses hardcore and metal in the vein of bands such as ISIS/NEUROSIS/CULT OF LUNA and REFUSED. Their sound on "0" is dark but honest, passionate but full of power and ambition - simply put - a noisy journey.

Incorporating heavy music with a soundscape influenced edge, transmission0 came out of the ashes of Dutch hardcore band Reveal. With the break-up of this band in 2001 guitarist Mischa van Rodijnen and bassplayer Dave van Beek decided it was time for a new chapter in their musical career. Some songs were written, but because of lack of time and involvement in other bands the two started getting serious with transmission0 in the summer of 2003. That's when they met Michiel van der Avoird, a keyboard wizard that perfected the sound of the band. His skills on the keys are the complement for the atmosphere of transmission0. An atmosphere that, on the one hand, is very heavy and has its roots in metal music, but on the other hand, has this musical tranquillity because of the varied textures. Transmission0 eventually found, after a long search, a drummer, called Bart Waalen. His hardhitting drumstyle is the perfect base for the band. When Holland's best kept secret The Void (indierock ala Sonic Youth, where t0's guitarist Mischa was also a part of), broke up, transmission0 asked Leon de Groot to join transmission0 on guitar. Being a big metal fan, Leon immediately said yes. And so t0 became a 5-piece. The result of the five working together is a powerful and emotionally honest new album that will draw attention to fans of heavy sounds, punk/hardcore as well as rock fans of bands like Cave in.
